

FSA High-Level Dialogue: The role of insurance in building a resilient society

Join us where leaders from the insurance sector and supervisors from the US, Europe, and Japan come together.

As we face greater impacts from climate change and natural catastrophes, the role of insurers in tackling these challenges, both as risk underwriters and long-term investors, is becoming even more critical. In this event, we will explore how insurers and the public sector can contribute to shaping a sustainable society for future generations, through collaborative and coordinated actions.
